

WHO WE ARE

JhJ is a member of the Journalists in Distress (JID) Network, a group of 18 international organizations that provide direct assistance to journalists and media workers whose lives or careers are threatened because of their work. Each organization has its own mandate and criteria for emergency assistance; the Network does not engage in joint advocacy. The JID Network was established in 2006 to allow member organizations with freedom of expression mandates to more easily share information, coordinate joint efforts and avoid duplication.

Actual Members of the JID Network:

- > ARTICLE 19, London
- > Canadian Journalists for Free Expression (CJFE), Toronto
- > Committee to Protect Journalists (CPJ), New York
- > Free Press Unlimited (FPU), Amsterdam
- > Freedom House, Washington
- > Front Line Defenders (FLD), Dublin
- > Human Rights Watch (HRW), New York
- > International Federation of Journalists (IFJ), Brussels
- > International Media Support (IMS) Copenhagen
- > International Women's Media Foundation (IWMF), Washington
- > IREX Journalist Safety Network, Washington
- > Journalists Helping Journalists (JHJ), Munich
- > Kalitri Foundation; Stockholm
- > Media Legal Defence Initiative (MLDI)
- > PEN America, New York
- > PEN International, London
- > Rory Peck Trust (RPT), London
- > Reporters Without Borders (RSF), Paris